

Add Class to Glass with Frosted Films

Use vinyl film that replicates etched glass to showcase your logo on the windows, doors or glass walls of lobbies, common areas and boardrooms.

A Little Privacy, Please

Applied to the glass walls and doors of executive offices or conference rooms, custom vinyl films add an element of privacy and can also feature attractive graphics that complement company branding.

Window Films That Show... Films

Turn any storefront window into a projection screen viewable by passersby! Applying a textured film to the inside of a window creates a surface onto which you can project video or images.

Made in the Shade

When applied to interior glass surfaces for glare reduction and heat/light control, perforated films can increase visitor comfort and decrease energy costs.

Stairways Without Stares

Glass staircase railings can offer those on lower levels unimpeded views upward — posing potential privacy issues for people wearing shorts and skirts. Opaque privacy films are the solution.

Here
You
See It...

Perforated window films are only viewable from one side. For example, those on the outside of a store will view a promotional graphic, while shoppers within will be able to see out clearly.
